

NYA TRAINING PROGRAM SHELVED

FAIR EMPLOYMENT PRACTICE ORDER No. 9346 ISSUED

Executive Order No. 9346, which will take "the Fair Employment Practice Committee out from under the War Manpower Commission and reconstitute it as an independent federal agency," was signed on May 28 by President Roosevelt.

The order is one of the measures being taken by the government "to eliminate discrimination in regard to hire, tenure, terms or conditions of employment or union membership because of race, creed, color or national origin." It states that the elimination of racial discrimination is the duty of all employers and labor organizations.

All government contracts with war industries must now contain "provisions ob-

EDITOR "KUNI"

Sports editor's note: Starting with this issue, Kango Kunitsugu will take over the OUTPOST's sports page.

Early April Agreement By NYA Cancelled; 215 Nisei Affected

The cancellation of arrangements, for the training of evacuees in resident training centers of the NYA, officially came through today.

The WRA revealed that it has been notified to this effect by the Administrator of the National Youth Administration. Recent, unfounded allegations made by the Congressional committee are felt to be the basis for cancellation.

In recent weeks, 275 young men and women in the relocation centers, all American citizens whose records and reliability have been carefully checked, enrolled in the NYA vocational training courses to prepare themselves for war work.

Of this number 215 were moved to NYA centers which they must leave immediately due to the new ruling.

Meanwhile, the WRA is making arrangements to resettle the trainees outside in jobs or in training courses under auspices other than the NYA. The officials of the WRA feel that it is not in the public interest for the displaced trainees to return to the relocation centers.

RESETTLEMENT MEETING TUESDAY

SACRAMENTO, CALIF. -- Attorney General Robert W. Kenny last week asked for assistance from all district attorneys in California in putting idle farm machinery, particularly that owned by evacuees, into immediate service. The Attorney General's request followed the signing by Governor Warren of a bill permitting the state to take over such equipment, according to the "Pacific Citizen."

Kenny termed the bill "a successful bypass of Federal red tape," pointing out that various federal agencies had "declined to act because of policy reasons" in requisitioning the machinery.

The new legislation enabled the Attorney General's office to authorize the State Director of Finance to obtain idle farm machinery by paying just compensation and to deliver the equipment to the farm production director for assigned use.

Valuations will be fixed by the finance and farm production directors, it was reported, concluded the "Pacific Citizen."

BLOCK 1 MOURNS LOSS OF JIGGS

Jiggs! Jiggs! was a familiar cry echoing throughout Block 1.

Jiggs, everyone's pal, was a little, black scotty owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ikuto Kawai and family. After evacuation he was cared for by Frank Spenser of Inglewood, Calif., who sent him to this Center. Daily his chores were to follow his master out to the farm and hunt wild game.

Then the unfortunate happened; Jiggs came back with a swollen nose, possibly a snake bite.

One cloudy day, he slipped into his happy hunting ground, but his barks and antics will always be remembered and treasured by his friends. Kaz Fukuya

MALARIA CONTROL BY DR. W. RAMSEY

Dr. Wayne Ramsey, chief medical officer, makes the following report on malaria control.

Malaria control measures are designed to (1) eliminate or control the breeding places of mosquitoes by draining and filling in ditches and pools, (2) destroy the larva by spraying with oil and (3) destroy the adult by removing vegetation from the ditches, screening houses and by swatting.

At present the state of Arkansas with the cooperation of the US Public Health service is draining the swamp lands surrounding the Project. Within the Project the water and ditches and pools are being sprayed weekly.

If residents are bothered by mosquitoes around the home, a search will usually reveal water in which they are breeding.

Following are three important points: Drain the water in ditches and fill in shallow pools. Clean out the vegetation in and around ditches. Inspect and repair all screens in quarters.

"With the cooperation of everyone the mosquito menace can be eliminated," declares Dr. Ramsey.

BENCH WARMER

By KANGO

The mass evacuation of Japanese from the West coast cut short many brilliant sports careers of nisei athletes. It seems that just when the nisei were hitting the sports pages of the big dailies, this catastrophe hit them, and hit 'em hard it did.

Most sports fans will remember Homicide Hal Hoshino, the Pendleton, Ore., boxing sensation. He was called the hardest hitting fighter in the feather-weight division and he lived up to those words by kayoing such top-notch leather-slingers as Lou Salica, Black Joe, George Hansford and many others.

Just before the war broke out, Hal came down to Los Angeles to win fame and maybe a chance for a shot at the crown. His first bout was with Jimmy Florita, a slugging Filipino, and it turned out to be his last. A heavy favorite to win, Hoshino was knocked cool in the first minute of the initial round with a surprise punch.

Most boxing experts still figure that Hoshino was a better man with his past, star-studded record, so Hal's manager asked for a rematch. But along came Dec. 7 and that smashed Hoshino's chance for a comeback, which I'm sure would have been successful.

Jockey Joe Kabuki's career is similar to Hal Hoshino's. Joe was one of the best jockey prospects on the coast, riding at Agua Caliente and Tanforan. Riding winners was becoming a habit to him when the war cut his short, but brilliant career.

Tak Kobayashi and Art Kaihatsu of UCLA, Dave Komatsu of USF, Aki Shirai-shi of Occidental college and Ken Uyesugi of Southern California are some of the many nisei athletes whose careers were jolted by the mass evacuation.

Let's hope that after the war, nisei athletes will bring nisei names back on the sports pages.

LOOP OPENER POSTPONED

Rohwer's Class "A" baseball league opening was delayed another week because of man-power shortage.
